Theft from Shops
Prevention & Reduction Strategy
Foreword

Preventing crime, through the provision of expert advice on areas such as personal security, home security and business security has been the hallmark of An Garda Síochána’s positive relationship with communities for decades. This critical Garda Síochána role in preventing crime has been reaffirmed in statute by virtue of Section 7 of the Garda Síochána Act, 2005 and within Garda policy, in the form of the National Model of Community Policing, which recognises crime prevention as one of its key Community Policing Pillars.

Thefts from shops are not uniformly distributed within society; some shops are targeted more than others, while specific products seem to be stolen more frequently than others. Recently however many retailers have experienced an increase in the number of thefts from shops, irrespective of the type of retailing in which they engage.

A proactive collaborative effort is required to target and prevent theft from shops. Over the years, retailers have joined together to form partnerships, devise strategies and work in collaboration with An Garda Síochána, e.g. Business Watch, with the aim of reducing opportunities for the criminal fraternity.

The primary focus of this strategy is not on the detection of theft, but rather on its prevention. Preventing thefts from shops requires a structured approach by An Garda Síochána and the retail community, through a coherent framework, where prevention and reduction measures, targeting theft from shops are combined with improved communication structures and effective partnerships.

An Garda Síochána is fully committed to preventing and reducing thefts from shops, and this is reflected in An Garda Síochána’s Strategy Statement 2010 – 2012.

The underlying message reflected in this strategy, is that retail theft prevention and reduction is deliverable through a structured policing in partnership approach.

Background

In 2009 a retail research study estimated that Irish shops lost approximately €453 million, a figure described by the industry as “shrinkage” - stock losses from crime, or waste expressed as a percentage of retail sales. This study estimated that ‘shoplifters’ were responsible for 40.6% of their losses and stole €183.9m worth of items. ‘Employee theft’ accounted for 36.8% (€166.7m worth of items) of shrinkage in Ireland, which the study claimed was the highest rate in Europe. It is argued that the losses incurred by shops as a result of thefts is equivalent to a tax on every Irish household of €348.91 a year.¹

Rates of shoplifting in Ireland appear to have increased over the past number of years, despite relatively high and consistent detection rates. According to recent official crime figures, theft from shops incidents in May 2010 (of which there were 1,901) show the highest single monthly figure in the last twelve months. In addition to this, data shows that theft from shops nationally has one of the lowest repeat offending rates amongst suspected offenders.

For retailers, an acute mindset shift from theft detection to a focus on theft prevention is promoted in this strategy. This ‘prevention’ model which has already been successfully implemented in some high profile retail outlets, has tangible win-win benefits for An Garda Síochána, retailers and other stakeholders.

This will require meaningful communication, consultation and action at a number of organisational and statutory levels, such as Joint Policing Committees, to ensure that this type of crime is both prevented and ultimately reduced.

Stakeholder consultation process

This strategy was developed following extensive research and consultation with a number of retailers and key stakeholders within An Garda Síochána.

Current initiatives*

Four examples of excellent initiatives currently carried out by members of An Garda Síochána, in conjunction with retailers throughout the country, include:

- In 2009 thefts from shops in Cork city represented approximately 42% of all headline crime. To tackle this, the divisional Crime Prevention Officer commissioned the regional Garda Síochána Analyst to conduct a robust in-depth analysis of thefts from shops in the top twelve retail stores within the city. Data unveiled that these retail stores accounted for 52% of all thefts from shops within the division. This review yielded rich information on key ‘trends’ relevant to profligacy, modus operandi, aggregate value of items stolen and specifics on the days and times when thefts from shops were most likely to occur etc. As a result of the proactive intervention of the Crime Prevention Officer, this data greatly assisted in the formulation of an ‘informed’ response by retailers and appropriate solutions were devised to reduce future incidence of this crime type.

- Through the revitalisation of Business Watch, An Garda Síochána in the ‘Q’ District has developed a committed partnership with the Liffey Valley Shopping Centre management. Uniformed members of An Garda Síochána patrol the centre for a specific period, aiming to prevent crime where possible, respond quickly to incidents and to engage with the public and staff. An Garda Síochána’s involvement in this operation proactively ensured that Gardaí worked closely with shopping centre security and retailers, thereby improving stakeholder relationships. The ‘Lessons Learned’ and benefits derived from this initiative are currently being reviewed for organisational dissemination as good practice.

- In Dublin City centre, a very high profile retail store has recently introduced a robust strategy on shoplifting around ‘prevention’ rather than detection. This ‘prevention’ model has had a profound impact on reducing thefts from the store and their success is currently being examined as a good practice strategy.

- In Letterkenny, an innovative ‘text alert’ system has been introduced involving The Chamber of Commerce, retailers and An Garda Síochána which has proved successful in collaboratively raising awareness of retail crime related information.

* This represents only a sample of current initiatives currently carried out by An Garda Síochána and Retailers.
An Garda Síochána’s commitment to this strategy

In order to build on the existing initiatives and practices in place, this strategy will be supported by each and every member of An Garda Síochána. The commitment to target theft from shops in Ireland will be inextricably linked to the framework of the Garda Síochána Strategy Statement 2010 – 2012. This commitment is evident in the organisation’s Vision, Mission and Values as set out below.

Vision

‘Excellent people delivering policing excellence’

Mission Statement

Working with communities to protect and serve

Values

- Honesty – Being honest and ethical and adhering in the principles of fairness and justice

- Accountability – Accepting individual responsibility and ensuring public accountability

- Respect – Having respect for people, their human rights and their needs

How will this strategy be achieved?

This strategy of targeting theft from shops will contribute directly to achieving the corporate objective of ensuring a peaceful community, by working with retailers and related agencies to reduce the opportunity for this type of crime. This strategy will be underpinned by the Garda Síochána National Model of Community Policing and will complement existing support structures and communication methods.

To deliver this strategy, four strategic priority objectives have been identified and are represented in the following pillars.

1. Develop and maintain effective communication links between An Garda Síochána, retailers and victims of retail theft

2. Promote a theft from shops ‘prevention’ ethos

3. Deliver a timely and effective proactive response by An Garda Síochána to retailers and victims of retail theft

4. Increase trust and confidence, and determine the ongoing needs of retailers and victims of retail theft.

Strategic roles and responsibilities

To achieve these objectives, the following roles and responsibilities will be allocated;

Senior management commitment

An Garda Síochána will use its strategic management and organisational structure, including the National Crime Prevention Unit (NCPU), to endorse, champion and support the implementation of this strategy. Retailers and Joint Policing Committees will play a key role in promoting and delivering a retail theft prevention ethos.

Operational ownership

Chief Superintendents, Superintendents and Departmental Heads will have responsibility for drafting and implementing plans at a local level to deliver this strategy. Managers, first line supervisors and all members of An Garda Síochána will be responsible for working towards delivering this strategy as depicted below;
Action plan

The following section outlines the objectives of this strategy, the initiatives that will be used to achieve them, the owners of these initiatives and the desired outcomes. This will be achieved through the four strategic priority pillars, which will underpin and drive implementation of this action plan;

1. Develop and maintain effective communication links between An Garda Síochána and retailers and victims of retail theft

Practical use of this strategy

This strategy has been designed to meet the needs of all divisions and districts. It is robust but flexible enough to ensure it contains advice and guidance so local management can react to the wide range of issues that are associated with the theft from shops. This strategy supports a holistic examination of local problems, while supplying examples of possible initiatives and approaches that can be used to prevent and reduce theft from shops.

Assessment of implementation

Evaluation of this strategy will be carried out in collaboration with a range of other strategies and initiatives underway within the framework of An Garda Síochána’s Strategy Statement 2010-2012 and the Garda Síochána National Model of Community Policing. The evaluation will include evaluation of interagency meetings, community meetings and events, collaborative approaches undertaken, crime trends, complaint trends and interviews/surveys.

Conclusion

Shoplifting costs Irish retailers and the exchequer millions of euro every year in Ireland. This strategy will be adaptable enough to target shoplifting and the diverse locations in which it occurs. Therefore, the evaluation criteria cannot stay static; they will change as the strategy evolves to meet the changing needs of retailers and communities, as will An Garda Síochána and its responses. Due to consistent increases in theft from shops over the past number of years, a renewed and concerted focus on the prevention of shoplifting and the policing service provided is required.
